DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 10/15/04 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hervert et al (US '632). and further in view of Hazlebeck (US 6,238,568).

Hervert et al disclose a liner for hydrothermal pressure vessel comprise of a porous layer, a non porous layer, wherein the porous layer is between the non-porous and the wall chamber (figure 1) and a seal for coupling a non-porous layer to the wall (col. 4, lines 30-32). A connector (15) extending through the wall for conveying operational information. A pressure, flow, and chemical sensor (col. 4, lines 45-50) for sensing leaking and flow in the porous layer.

Art Unit: 1725

In addition, Hervert et al disclose a partition (12 and 13) between the non-porous layer and wall for dividing the porous layer into first and second sections (figure 2), a mean for fluid communication between the first and second porous section as shown in the figures.

Hervert et al fail to teach a pump in fluid communication with the connector. However, Hervert et al discuss fluid inlet and outlet means to pass through the casing wall (col. 4, lines 58-64). In addition, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to provide a pump, since cooling fluid is conventionally pumped in order for circulation within the casing.

However, Hazelbeck discloses a pump (68) for the purpose of cooling the reactor (col. 7, lines 35-40).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time applicant's invention was made to provide a pump as taught by Hazelbeck, in Hervert et al in order to cool the reactor.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-12 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection set forth in paragraph 2.
